MARKET REPORT

October 30th, 2026

Weather and seasonal transitions continue to affect supply across several categories. Asparagus, carrots, snow peas, sugar snaps, tomatoes, and select beans remain tight, while pricing is trending higher in multiple areas.

ASPARAGUS

Markets are extremely active, prices continue to trend up, and heavy prorates are expected.

TOMATOES

Supply of grape tomatoes, baby medley tomatoes, and mixed heirloom tomatoes is down, with pricing trending up.

BLUEBERRIES

Pacific Northwest production has concluded, shifting primary supply to Peru. Volumes remain limited through October

Snow Peas

Supply of Guatemalan snow peas and sugar snaps remains extremely limited. Improvement is expected in mid-November.

GREEN BEANS

The bushel market remains red hot as the transition south continues and holiday demand picks up.

CARROTS

Production of Guatemalan baby orange, baby rainbow, and baby bi-color carrots continues to decrease and remains below normal.
